DEFENDANTS WIN IN THREE CIVIL CASES

A peculiar feature of three decisions given by Judge H. L. Maxfield in municipal court today was that each was in favor of the defendant, plaintiffs being ordered to pay the costs in all three actions. It is considered unusual for a person to start an action on a bill claimed to be unpaid and not only lose the suit, but to have to pay several dollars for his attempt.

The judge found in favor of the defendant in the auto damage suit of Bailey Rockwood vs. August Broege, holding that plaintiff failed to show that Edward Broege, who was driving the car when the accident in question happened, was running the machine as the agent of August Broege. Both cars were damaged in the collision which occurred on the Janesville-Milton road. Rockwood claiming negligence on Broege's part in not going to the right of the road.

Rockwood was ordered to pay the costs. George M. Austin, truck driver, lost his action against Strong and Simonsen, Beloit milk dealers, and was ordered to pay costs amounting to $16.25. He sought to recover for hauling milk at $12 a day. The judge held the evidence showed a contract at $10 a day had been made and a check on this basis had been sent and was in plaintiff's possession several weeks before being rejected. In the case of the American Gas Machinery company vs. L. C. Lenz, the company was ordered to pay costs of $9.85, the court holding the bill in question had been paid in full by Lenz.

SPIRITS! FRAUDS TRICKS OR REAL?

New York.—Right across the continent a war is going to be waged over the existence of spirits. Sir Oliver Lodge, leading British physicist, now touring this country. For the negative: Prof. Joseph Jastrow, eminent psychologist of the University of Wisconsin. Referee: Old Man Public. Marquis of Queensberry rules. No hitting in the churches. Sir Oliver Lodge, not in the least concerned about what Prof. Jastrow chooses to do. If Prof. Jastrow chooses to follow the lead of the other party, the condition that Sir Oliver makes is that the other pay his own railroad fare. "I do not think he is conversant with my belief, nor that he knows what I have been lecturing about," Sir Oliver says. "But what about mediums, such as Prof. Jastrow mentions, which have been exposed as fraudulent?" was the question put to Sir Oliver. "There are a few fraudulent mediums," he said, "but that does not disprove the truths we have discovered. We, in Europe, knew all about Eusapia Palladino before she was 'exposed' here as they say."

Wherever Sir Oliver Lodge goes Prof. Jastrow of Wisconsin, is going to go too. Sir Oliver believes in spiritualism. Prof. Jastrow does not. He does not hesitate to say this. So right across the continent, the American Sir Oliver is going to be followed by an array of assertions, questions and denials absolute.

"The whole field of spiritualism is outside the proper scope of scientific investigation," said Prof. Jastrow. "It is not worth the attention of a scientist."

"Most of it could be exposed by the ordinary college boy. But some of it is not. It is necessary to examine its claims in the light of scientific fact."

"Table raising, slate writing and such tricks are simply 100 percent fraud."

"Sir Oliver Lodge, of course, is welcome to his private views on spirits. But the subject is not a matter of opinion. It is a matter of fact. I object to the fact that he is using his great reputation as a physicist to bolster up a belief in their existence, but in spite of such evidence."

"There is nothing in the realm of physics to fit a man for investigation in this subject, and when Sir Oliver Lodge says he believes in spiritualism, it is of no more importance than if a shopkeeper said it."

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl eighteen years of age, but I am very young-looking except for my lips. I am not quite six feet tall. I work in an office and dress neatly in heavy clothes.

I like to dance, but never have a fellow to take me, and so my mother or girl friend goes. I am very fond of dancing, and worst of all, no one ever asks me to go to supper with him or takes me home, and so my mother waits and we walk home together.

Please tell me why this is and how I can gain some boy's friendship?
SODER FACED GIRL.

Without seeing you it is impossible to say why you need not like some girl friend tell you what she thinks is the reason. Ask her to be frank and say that you really want to know and will appreciate her kindness if she tells you.

Love is always baffling. It goes where it will and cannot be forced. Beauty alone does not attract love, because many very plain women are loved and many beautiful women loveless.

Study your friends and try to find out what they consider interesting. If you talk about the things they like, and draw them out they will like you. You have called yourself a "soder faced" and so it is best to caution you against giggling.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What would you do if a young man had asked you for steady company and you loved him truly, and then he turned you down?

That young man is twenty-five and I am twenty-two. I thought he was a Christian present and I accepted. A few weeks ago we were at a dance and after the dance he took me home, but he didn't ask me for a date and only kissed me good-night. Since that time I have not seen him. I know he is not sick, but no one knows why he left me.

What shall I do? Shall I write to him or call him and ask what the trouble is? It is hard to give him up. A RUN DOWN PERSON.

Simply accept the truth that the boy no longer cares for you and take your disappointment in such a way that he and others will not know how much he has hurt you. Do not write. His staying away should be explanation enough. If the Christmas present was a piece of jewelry, return it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl sixteen years old and am a sophomore in high school. Every Sunday evening there is a young man who either telephones me or comes down and asks to accompany me to church. I do not like him and treat him very coldly and have told him that I will not go with him, but he continues to pay attention to me. What shall I do to get rid of him?

SWEET SIXTEEN.
When he phones or calls, let your mother or father talk to him. If they say you do not care to go, he will be more likely to understand.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Does it ruin the hair to rat it with a comb? We would like to wear puffs over the ears. YOUNG LADY.

Yes, it is very bad for the hair to rat it with a comb. It causes the hair to split and become ragged looking. Ear puffs are no longer in vogue.

"Seen To Be Sixteen": You sent an envelope and received a personal answer, but you did not sign your name or address the envelope. A personal reply, therefore, is impossible.

DON'T FORGET YOUR SMOCK THIS SEASON

white or colors embroidered in prettily yard or even designs may be had at the more moderate prices and they are very smart for garden or sports wear with white or colored skirts. The more expensive smocks come in georgette, chiffon, silks, satins, kumil kumil and other costly materials. Embroidery is the favorite trimming. Round necks and belts are also usual features of the new smock.

Here is a very attractive model seen in the display of clothing for the southern traveler. It is fashioned of a basket weave cotton fabric in brick color. A wide border of small sleeves and the lower edge, while a narrower border trims the round neck and the merest outline serves to trim the narrow belt. This is worn with a skirt of gray tussah silk. The large sailor hat is gray straw with a design embroidered on it in brick colored raffia.

WAYS TO COOK PORK
Accompaniments to Pork—With pork should be served apples (sautee or baked), spinach, the coarse and bulky vegetables, and the less delicate, such as cabbage, turnips, parsnips, kohlrabi, onions, tomatoes, sweet and white potatoes. For side use apples, berry jelly, sour pickles, pickle beets, and ripe olives.

A light dessert of fruit, a fruit pudding, or fruit molded in gelatin, is very gratifying with a pork meal. Fat containing foods and substantial dishes of milk and eggs should be excluded from accompanying pork even more closely than in the case of mutton.

The following recipes are given for cooking pork as a whole, also when only small amounts for flavor are accompanied by other foods:

Roast Pork.—To prepare roast pork, wipe pork, sprinkle with salt and pepper, place on rack in dripping-pan or roaster, and dredge meat and bottom of pan with flour. Place

In this month of blouses do not forget the smock. That very practical and at the same time becoming garment promises to be as popular this year as it was last. Many models are being displayed for southern wear now, which will be good for wear far into the summer season. The spring showing of blouses boasts of many "smocks" ranging in price from $2.95 to $15, which proves that there is a smock for everyone. Many dainty ones of linen or wonderful in

She Married an Average Man

By ZOE BECKLEY.

Weeks have passed since the departure of Rose Green for New York. Jim has never once been hearing of her. But I do not know if she is still in New York. To him she seems the forgotten heroine of a closed incident. She had almost died from my memory, too, when today Agatha Pardoe came to call and shot another dart into my mind.

"Bring your sewing right out on the porch and I'll darn those stockings for you, Miss Salsbery, while we chat."

I always know when Mrs. Pardoe has something disagreeable to relate by the way she insists on those occasions upon helping me. How a woman does gloat over the problems and perplexities of sex relations!

If she is old, she lives in the love affairs of her youth. If she lacks even the memory of great experiences, she enjoys them vicariously through the matter-of-fact little housewife like Agatha—never loses interest in romance and its two sister domestic tragedies.

"Who do you souse I got a letter from this morning—that good-for-naught snip relative of mine, Rose Green? According to her, she's married in 'out' line. Agatha paused significantly. I chose not to encourage her confidences.

"That's good," I canonical. "That reminds me, I need help awfully myself. I'll pay $5 a week if I can only find a competent woman to live here and do the housework."

"Rose says it costs her $12 a week to board," cut in Agatha, ignoring my remark. "But she doesn't need to worry. I've arranged for her to get a position with some business friends of mine."

"Um-m," murmured my caller, running her sewing needle carefully across a hole. "She ain't got it yet—that situation. She wasn't hurryin' none. She wrote in the letter. You know, Miss Salsbery, I believe in beating frank and open about things, so I wrote her to get on with it. But I do hate to see a sweet young woman like yourself being took in. Will you let me be very candid? You won't be offended or worried or anything? Well, all right, then. Mrs. Pardoe leaned toward me and held her hand, over which one of Jim's socks was drawn, beside her lips as she whispered, "Rose has got just seeds up seeds of money! Now, where did she get it?"

I laughed carelessly, though it annoyed me unspeakably that Rose should have had the coarseness to write home about the money Jim gave her to tide over any wait or emergency.

"I'll tell you where she got it," I hastened to say. "Jim loaned it to her out of the kindness of his heart. I couldn't see her go down there with only the prospect of a position and nothing in reserve, you know. I really was awfully glad he did it. I lied, smiling pleasantly.

Agatha Pardoe looked at me in real surprise. "Well, you women nowadays has queer notions—modern ideas, I suppose you call 'em—about what's what in married life. You manage marriages different nowadays to what Tom and me used to think right when we was young. Here's Rose down in New York begging that she's stuck to her board and lodging as long as she likes without working."

"Mrs. Pardoe, she surely didn't say that!" I was shocked into saying. "Well, not exactly in so many words perhaps, my dear. But I know Rose, and I know men!"

I laughed to myself at her comic egotism. It is preposterous, of course. But I wonder—

Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author.

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writers' names are not printed. Other letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individuals cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

LONG FELT WANT FOR PERISTALSIS
A distinguished colleague contributes today's health talk.

My dear Mr. Brady:
Your recent article about liver pills was excellent.

I have for many years refused to give medicine for constipation, preferring to work out the problem by means of brain and other articles of diet.

I first made a study of my own case after having had several occurrences of thrombotic piles and after having been told by friends, a proctologist of repute, that he would have me as a patient the rest of his life. I said nothing doing.

My office nurse makes a bran muffin which is a wonderful cake. She has a recipe which will be of use in your daily column.

Do you know, Doctor, the rest of it is irrelevant.

Now, here's what the office nurse enclosed:

2 cups wheat bran
1 cup white flour
1 teaspoonful baking powder
1 teaspoonful salt
2 cup molasses
1 cup cold milk.

Kaisins washed in cold water and chopped in small pieces, one-half cupful.

Walnut meats, one-half cupful, chopped in small pieces.

Mix thoroughly, bake in greased muffin pans in hot oven.

The near-health expert, the indolent "doctor," the new-fangled food, the self-anointed "food expert," the pessimist, the dyspeptic, the theorist and the nihilist have managed to promulgate the notion that when a man is not exactly wholesome or fit to eat every day, or that it is likely to "irritate" something or other, or that it is not digestible, that is why it is a good remedy for constipation. These objections are untenable for the great majority of victims of chronic constipation and the pill or physic habit. In any event, the pill or physic habit, in any event, one who must take a physic frequently can take no physic less injurious or less irritating than what is called "Nature's doublet" means that even civilized man should eat freely.

These muffins my colleague's nurse makes are no all-dried good to nibble that I almost fear to print this recipe to the public lest a lot of muffin fiends be created and the government appoint a commission to issue muffin licenses and require physicians to keep muffin records and pay a muffin tax and report to some politician how many muffins and for whom they are prescribed. But you see, she is a very pretty nurse, indeed, and I still have the habit of eating well, the younger doctors will understand what I mean.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Sheer stockings and low pumps. These are the worst of evils for a class of girls whether it is injurious to health for young girls to wear low cut shoes and stockings in cold weather. (Marion B. E.)

ANSWER.—If the girls are really comfortable with their legs exposed to the wintry blasts it is certainly healthier. Anything like that is healthy, provided it is comfortable. The less clothing we wear at any time, with consideration for physical (mental) comfort, the more hygienic. All clothing is more or less unhygienic and clothing is always unhygienic if it makes us too warm.

It's no use, girls. I just can't say a word against it from the health point of view, but I have just got to add that silk stockings, "daring" dresses and gaudy rouse generally go with a bad vacuum in the brain. The morose type of young woman uses all of these poor tricks in her peculiar game of life.

The Girls Don't Lark.
I. Would it be injurious to remain in a room while the room is being disinfected with formaldehyde, or other disinfectant? The best method of using them for disinfecting a room? 2. Would any injury be done by putting a solution of carbolic acid on cotton and placing it where the odor will mix with the air inhaled? E. C. J.

ANSWER.—1. If you mean fumigation, one couldn't endure the poison. 2. A solution of the chlorid of lime or formalin or carbolic acid might be made in water, and the walls, floor, furniture and woodwork generally washed, though I am sure plain soap and water washing is as efficient. Fumigation of a room is an unreliable substitute for cleanliness, ventilation and sunlight, as a means of preventing infection. 3. Not a few drops, perhaps, but why fool with such dangerous poisons? You can't detect the odor, and even if you could, without rendering it poisonous.

In moderate oven and roast three or four hours, basting every 15 minutes with fat in pan. For roast pork the usual rule is 25 minutes to the pound. Make gravy, using same proportions as white sauce.

Pork Steak with Sweet Potatoes.—Use pork tenderloins and wipe first with a damp cloth. Place in a greased baking dish and brown in a hot oven quickly. Season with salt and pepper and baste with hot water frequently while cooking for about 40 minutes. Slice boiled sweet potatoes lengthwise, place in the baking dish with the meat, and bake until nicely browned, basting frequently. Pork Pie.—Two pounds of pork, four large potatoes, one small carrot, two slices of lemon, peeled, one tablespoon chopped parsley, two tablespoons chopped celery, one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon catsup, salt, pepper, one crust. Slice the pork in small strips, then cook in cold water with the lemon, parsley and celery to simmer for 30 minutes. Boil the potatoes, sliced, with carrots, for about 10 minutes. Place the meat and vegetables in a deep baking dish, add other seasonings and dredge with flour. Add water to cover and bake slowly. When the meat is tender, cover with crust and bake until lightly browned.

Savory Fresh Pork.—Two cups chopped meat, two tablespoons fat, one cup cooked tomatoes, salt, red pepper, small and chopped fine; two tablespoons flour, one small onion, one cup gravy or meat stock, one-half teaspoon celery salt. Slice the onion and brown it delicately in the fat. Then add the flour and stir until well blended. Turn in the tomatoes, gravy, meat. Add the seasoning and heat well. Serve with baked potatoes.
